Tornado Sweeps Parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, Leaving Scores of Injured and Dead in Wake.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The southwestern disturbance which, in passing through Texas and Oklahoma, caused heavy loss of life and property damage, was centered today over Iowa, with increased intensity, according to reports to the weather bureau.

DALLAS, Tex., April 10.—One hundred dead had been listed as victims of the tornado which yesterday struck Northern Texas, Southern Oklahoma and parts of Arkansas, when it began to be reached today after the chaos which followed in the wake of the storm. The injured, some of them so badly hurt that they can not recover, are expected to number several hundred. The property damage, while it will run into many thousands of dollars, is not expected to be as great as that of the storm which struck the Texas and Oklahoma border, striking only farm houses and small villages.

Last night the homeless were cared for at the homes of their neighbors. The storm, in its erratic course, did not devastate any entire region, often enough leaving several homes untouched and then dipping in and demolishing the next few homes. The temperature dropped to freezing along the northern line of counties and added to the discomfort.

The counties most damaged were Grayson, Tarrant, Dent, Fannin, Tarrant, Wicoma, Collin, Camp and Tarrant in Texas, and Bryan, Cotton and Pontotoc in Oklahoma. The field crops in Wicoma county and of Southern Oklahoma suffered hundreds of thousands of dollars damage in wrecked derricks and machinery.

The hour at which the storm struck probably caused the greatest damage. Nearly all houses destroyed contained sleeping people. In most cases the first occupants of the houses were killed when the walls crashed down upon their heads.

The entire storm did not last more than an hour after the first signs appeared, leaving wrecked houses, orchards and forests. Many communities describe it as not more than a few hours' rain in width, its limits being well defined, while the other places of ruined homes and fields was a mile wide.

For help from the storm area has been received here by Mayor Frank W. Wozenar from R. C. May, mayor of Amarillo, and from the city of Waco. Supplies were rushed to that town at once.

The cotton town of Canaan was completely wiped out. Its cotton gin, its church, school and cotton warehouse were all destroyed. The crop of the nearby farmers and its life were all swept to the ground.

Injuries of a large share of those living in the storm area are confined to broken arms and legs, according to the report from Winnsboro, Tex. The storm, which swept the Southern States, was especially severe in New Mexico. The snowfall in New Mexico varied from one to two inches, except in the Kansas valley, where heavy rains were reported to have suffered heavily, were said to be slight.

TO MOVE STABLE

Owen-Harding Suggestion Approved—Company Will Have Possibly $100,000,000 Capital.

Preliminary steps toward the formation of the proposed $100,000,000 to $100,000,000 cotton export corporation were taken by the convention called to discuss the proposition before the first session of the American Cotton Shippers' Association, which opened at 1 o'clock at the Goodwyn institute.

By a unanimous vote the convention decided upon the organization of the corporation along the lines laid down in the address of Senator Robert L. Owen and W. G. Harding, governor of the federal reserve board, both of whom addressed the convention during the morning session.

The motion, including the appointment of an organization committee of three members from each cotton-growing state, was briefly discussed. Five other members are to be added by the chairman of the convention, Gov. Harding, of Louisiana.

Report of the names of the committee members are to be voted on at the reconvening of the convention Thursday afternoon. The selection of the three members is a very important matter, as they will be the representatives of the cotton-growing states.
